Drunk VIP removed from Lufthansa flight MUC to BRU today - any information welcomed

Apparantly today on Monday 27/05/2019 a VIP passenger had to be involuntarily removed from Lufthansa flight MUC - BRU after excessive alcohol consumption.

The Captain aborted takeoff and informed the passengers that a VIP was going to have to be removed for disorderly conduct. In the meantime the crew had contacted law enforcement (Polizei). He/she was finally removed from the aircraft. The plane had already been held up waiting for the VIP to arrive.

I'm highly interested in this incident, if you have more information (preferably with source) then do not hesitate to send me a pm. Thank you!

Which tabloid are you working for or are selling it to?

Which tabloid are you working for or are selling it to?

Yeah. The URGENT part is not needed and bit hysterical.

Also, if this were really an aborted takeoff then it’s worth discussing. If it is just a removal of a drunk passenger while still at the gate, meh, not worth the discussion.

Same hysteria over President Trump’s tax returns. Once you get them, then what. Lotsa hype until then, followed by disappointment.

Nevertheless, the identity of this person is admittedly extremely politically charged. Unfortunately, I can not reveal more info at this point in time.

Btw, the title has been slightly changed to less drama ;)

Definitely looks like LH2288 was the flight. FR24 replay shows that it returned to stand shortly after they began their taxi.

Quite different. If his tax returns reveal that either/or he has been lying, has had business relations with people in such a way that they could influence him, has committed other crimes - then yes, it does matter if the President of the United States does or did those things.

Many thanks for the flight number! The delay for this flight shows 51 minutes late on flightaware

(https://uk.flightaware.com/live/flight/DLH2288/history/20190527/1250Z/EDDM/EBBR)
In that case, would a delay of 51 minutes be realistic thinking? Do pilots have to file a report after the flight? Are those reports available to the public?

He was in Munich at least a few days ago http://www.rfi.fr/europe/20190524-europeennes-dernier-meeting-ppe-munich

You have lost the bet. No, it's not Juncker moreover that poor man has a serious health problem, the sciatic nerve, but no alcohol problem.

I repeat for those who can't read, it's about a flight in which a VIP passenger was forcibly removed by police officers, all the ingredients for a civil aviation thread. Thanks for your worthless advice, next!

- Mon May 27, 2019 10:00 pm I doubt a pilot would inform passengers a "VIP" was being removed. I'm sure they would say a passenger, even even referencing it.

What we are ultimately discussing is a flight delay (and a rather insignificant one) caused by a drunk passenger. So @passengershaming then...

And thank you for your worthless forum post! It made my day.
